

INTERNATIONAL WORKSHOP

Project MUTORG-ADMI (Les mutations organisationnelles de l'administration française. Hiérarchies, division du travail et coordination)

Organized by

Laure Bonnaud (INRA), Pierre Lascoumes (Sciences Po, CEE, CNRS),
Jean-Pierre Le Bourhis (CNRS, CURAPP) and Emmanuel Martinais (ENTPE)

Friday
21 September
2012
9 am - 5.30 pm

Sciences Po
Room Goguel
56, rue des Sts-Pères
75007 Paris

Metro:
St Germain des Près

Governing the Sustainable Development Evolution of Environmental Administrations in Europe and United States

In 2007 a new French "Ministry for sustainable development" was created, a 'super Ministry' which houses the functions of the former Ministries of Environment, Energy, Housing, and Transport under one single roof. This merger applies to all levels of government, with the creation of large regional services for sustainable development.

This mode of reform does not seem to be specific to the French case. At first glance, it echoes the concerns for more coordination and integration which have been already observed in several other countries including Germany and the United Kingdom.

This workshop aims to compare different national situations regarding environmental administrations and their impact on public policies.

Registration: claud.pompey@ivry.inra.fr

Programme

9.15 am: Introduction and welcome

Philippe Bezes (CNRS, CERSA)

Morning session

Chairman: Calliope Spanou (University of Athens)

9.30 am: Andrew Jordan (University of East Anglia)

The government of environment and sustainability in the UK: leading in or being led by Europe?

10.30 am: Falk Ebinger (Ruhr Universität Bochum)

Between decentralization, politicization and professionalism. Environmental administrations in Germany at a crossroad

11.30 am: Jean-Pierre Le Bourhis (CNRS, CURAPP)

Task force or Super Ministry? Institutional models and transformations of environmental administration in France

12.45 pm: Lunch break

Afternoon session

Chairman: Florence Faucher (Sciences Po, CEE)

2.30 pm: Rüdiger K. Wurzel (University of Hull)

The European Union's complex environmental policy-making system: Core institutional actors and their evolving roles and functions

3.30 pm: Marc A. Eisner (Wesleyan University)

Environmental protection in the United States: fragmentation, rigidity, and the problems of institutional design

Conclusion and prospects

4.45 pm: Peter Knoepfel (IDHEAP Lausanne)

This workshop is organized with the support of the city of Paris and of the French Research National Agency